

MaryFoley

Short Bio

Known for her insights, candidness and humor, Mary Foley energizes women's careers and events as a captivating keynote speaker, panels 2.0 facilitator, and designer of event experiences that professional women crave. Mary began inspiring women after her 10-year career at AOL - when AOL was cool - where she started as an $8 an hour customer service rep and rose to become the company's first head of corporate training.

She is the author of three books, including Bodacious! Career: Outrageous Success for Working Women, blogger on WorkingMother.com, and former co-host of the Girlfriend We Gotta Talk radio show.

In a surprising turn of events, Mary appeared on the cover of Kiplinger's Personal Finance magazine and was spoofed on the E! Entertaining TV show The Soup. For more, go to maryfoley.com.
